RE: Chicopee Center 40R Zoning District Ordinance and Design Standards

Attached find the final draft of the Chicopee Center 40R zoning district ordinance and guidelines. It has been some time since we started this process so I have included an information sheet about 40R zoning and the financial incentives for adopting such a district. 40R districts are overlay districts. This adds development opportunities without changing the current zoning status of any property within the district.

The ordinance was modeled by our consultants (Housing Partners Inc) in accordance with state guidelines and with input from Planning staff, HPI's legal advisor, and architect. It is a lengthy document for several reasons. First the state requires 40R district regulations to be completely self-contained. We also chose to include the district design standards in the ordinance because it seemed tidier to have all the regulations for the district in one place. However, you may choose to adopt the design guidelines as supplementary to the ordinance. Finally, you will find incorporated in the ordinance a map of the district and its subdistricts. The architect/consultants proposed subdistricts within the larger area in recognition of the complexity of downtown land use. The subdistricts are treated separately in the design guidelines. All this contributed to the length of the document.

As wordy as the ordinance is, what it boils down to is that housing would be allowed by right in most parts of downtown BUT only if it meet 40R affordability, dimensional and design standards. The City Council determines what those standards are and is the approval authority for 40R zoning projects. The process is similar to the Mill Conversion Overlay District special permit process.

Rather than craft a lengthy memo to go with with this lengthy ordinance proposal, I welcome the opportunity to speak to you after you have had the opportunity to review it. If you would prefer further written explanation for what follows, I will respond immediately.

This ordinance should take the same course as any zoning ordinance -- Planning Board, Zoning and Ordinance for public hearings.

6/2/09: Motion made by Councilor Demers to receive, 1st reading and referred to the Ordinance, Zoning and Planning Committee. Motion passed.
